

Hi Matt,

I just wanted to let you know what a pleasure it was working with everyone from your company. From the first contact to the last, everyone was cordial and very professional. I'm happy to say that all of the work was done basically in one day, coordinating construction repair with the garage door people. As promised, your guys were back two days later to finish the siding and did an excellent job matching it. No one would ever know anything had ever happened. When an unexpected accident like this happens and interrupts your life, it's very nice to know that someone can still take care of it with very little added interruption. It's also nice to know that good customer service still exists in this day and age. It's often the "thing" that separates one company from another. Please tell everyone I dealt with...good job!
